

Community Food Share's Youth Leaders Board Application

Community Food Share is a Food Bank in Louisville, Colorado that services Boulder and Broomfield Counties. We not only provide food directly to families, seniors, students, and others, we're also a hub – delivering millions of pounds of food a year to local partners to reach people in their communities.

The Youth Leaders Board is designed to get high school students involved in the community and give them a chance to volunteer and receive real world experiences and benefits.

This program is selective and will only be offered to students that exhibit excellence, self-initiative, and dedication to giving back to their community. Applicants must have a passion for leadership and connecting with other young leaders. Applicants must have worked at least one shift in the Feeding Families pantry prior to September to be considered.
